Since 1811, people in the Himalaya mountains have spotted a hairy ape-like creature who stands over 8 feet tall and has foot prints 15 inches long.

Bigfoot has also been called Windigo, Sasquatch, Mahoni, The Abominable Snowman, and Yeti.

Nobody knows if he really exists or whether there is a family of these mysterious creatures.

The real Dracula was born in 1431 in Transylvania, a province of Hungary (although now a part of Romania). He was a mean, cruel, and demented Prince of an area called Wallachia.

Dracula means Son of the Devil or Son of the Dragon. In some languages the words devil and vampire are the same and this is why the association between Dracula and vampirism was made.

DINOSAURS

This dinosaur is called Brontosaurus which means "thunder lizard". It was one of the largest dinosaurs weighing about 40 tons and was about 70 feet long.

Brontosaurus used to eat only plants, used its giant tail for protection and some think lived to 1000 years old. His brain was tiny so he was quite dumb.

All dinosaurs were not big, however. A dinosaur called Compsognathus was the size of a pigeon, yet he couldn't even fly.

A-MAZE-A-MONSTER

First work out the shortest path through the maze. Then go through this path again and properly add, subtract, or multiply the numbers on the path and see if you can get the right answer. There is work space on pg 14.

THE VAMPIRE BAT

This incredible monster is the real Vampire Bat. This creature lives on the blood of animals by scraping their skin and sucking up the blood.

Not all monsters appear as they are. We fooled you with this picture. The Vampire Bat is only as big as a small Sparrow, weighs less than an apple, and rarely hurts anything. As a matter of fact it usually draws a few drops of blood from sleeping cows who do not even wake-up to know what has happened!

ARRIVING ON THE SCENES

1. Dracula began when a man named Bram Stoker wrote a book in 1897 about a Count (named Dracula) who could turn into a bat. The book was based in name on a cruel ruler who lived in the 1400s.
(see page 4)
2. Dinosaurs began when various creatures (who lived in the oceans) began to survive on land. As they moved to land, their legs became stronger and they began to eat the plants that grew on the Earth. All life on Earth began in the sea.
3. Frankenstein was not a monster at all but the name of the scientist that built a monster by collecting human body parts from graves. The monster had no name and Frankenstein's first name was Victor. Frankenstein began as a book by Mary Shelley, written in 1818.
4. UFOs or Unidentified Flying Objects began many years ago when people saw things in the sky that looked like space ships. Although there are millions of planets in space (some similar to Earth), nobody has yet proven that UFOs come from other planets. An American astronaut, a U.S. President, and over 10 million people have said they have seen UFOs!
5. The Loch Ness Monster lives in Scotland and has been sighted for over 1400 years! No one has gotten a good look at this so called monster, it has never hurt anybody,
9 and it could turn out to be many generations of whales.
